Hello Lino test,

If you've ever wondered whether your pet's getting more vaccines than necessary, this one's for you. Our upcoming Knowledge on Demand session—Vaccines: Logic Versus Reality—breaks down the myths and truths behind vaccination schedules. Discover what vets don't always explain, explore Dr. Jeff's holistic vaccine plan, and even learn how to request waivers and exemptions when appropriate. Reserve your spot here.

You can also use pumpkin for both constipation and diarrhea—yes, the same ingredient does double duty! In our latest blog, Use of Pumpkin for Gut Issues, find out why it works, which form gives the best results, and exactly how much to use.

Then, if your dog is afflicted with hypothyroidism, you might have come across the idea that maybe you should not feed kale. It is certainly avoided in people with the condition. But, if you are making your own food, can you feed it? Find out in the Diet Clues to Follow in Hypothyroid Dogs.

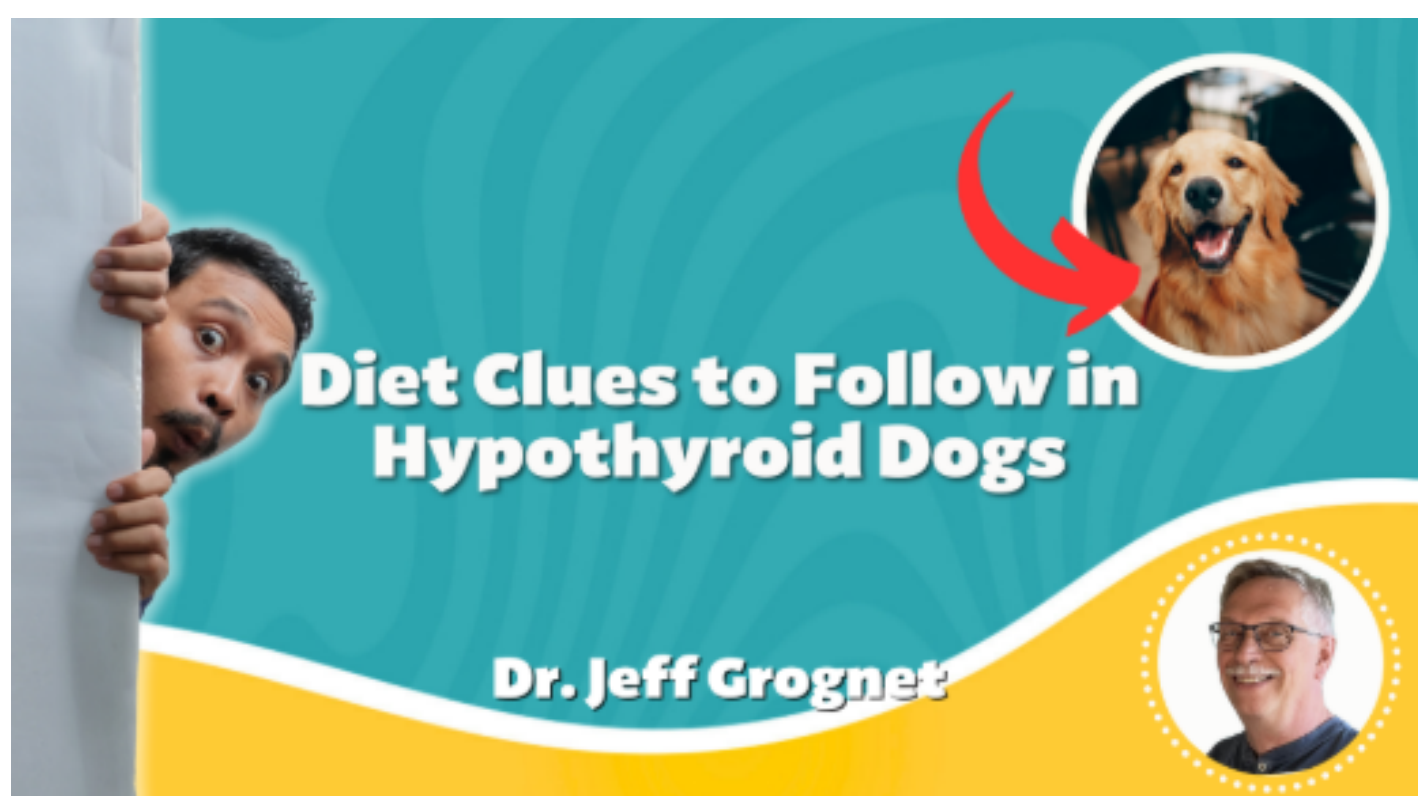

See you in class,

Dr. Jeff and Lino

You can use pumpkin for constipation and for diarrhea. Find out why it works, what form works best, and the dose you need.
